

Lead Facilitator

Kim White

Kim White is an active youth advocate who believes that “anything is possible”. Her career experience has prepared her for such a time as this, to serve in the capacity of molding and directing this next generation of youth leaders. Kim is a passionate believer in the resiliency and ability of the youth of this day. She has a special affinity for working with grandchildren who are being raised by their grandparents and is honored to have the opportunity to work with the students at Carver Early College High School. One of her most exciting experiences has been the opportunity to plan and lead two study abroad trips for the students at the early college high school. Kim is a proud alumna of Hampton University and the University of Alabama at Birmingham; and is a member of the Key Leader Advisory Board. She is currently employed at the Rochester Institute of Technology in Rochester, NY as the Director of Diversity Assessment and Research Management. She is poised in a position to help guide and direct the work of the university as they move forward in creating a campus environment that applauds and values the human diversity that exist on their campus.
